

Leading Business Women of Boston

As an Executive Director at J.P. Morgan Private Bank in Boston with twenty years of financial services experience, Nicole Stansell provides wealth management solutions to investment professionals and private business owners. And because she knows that these clients have large and complex balance sheets, her conversations often focus on lending and liquidity management, estate and charitable planning and thematic public and private investment opportunities.

“While it might sound complex, at the most basic level, I help families navigate their financial lives,” says Nicole. “At the end of the day, clients want to know that they have a trusted partner, and their wealth is planned, positioned and performing in a way that will help them achieve their goals and provide for their loved ones.”

Believing that a preemptive approach is always best, Nicole helps her clients plan across both sides of their balance sheet. “I work to bring the collective experience of my clients to every single situation,” she says. “I am invested in delivering the best advice, experience, and service.”
